5. DIAGNOSTIC TOOLS AND CRITERIA FOR ASSESSING LEARNING OUTCOMES

Assessment tools and methods of demonstrating learning outcomes

Assessment tools and methods of demonstrating learning outcomes in the discipline are:

- student activity in the discussion, quality of the abstract;
- performance of practical, creative work, team projects;
- speeches at practical classes, reports, presentations, abstracts, essays, scientific articles and abstracts of reports at conferences;
- performance of individual and group tasks of independent work;
- performance of test tasks, as well as modular control works.

During modular and final control, the means of assessing learning outcomes in the discipline are computer testing, performance of theoretical and practical tasks.

Forms of control and criteria for assessing learning outcomes

Forms of current control: oral and written answers in seminars and practical classes.

Form of module control: written with elements of testing.

Form of final semester control: credit.

Distribution of points received by applicants for higher education (module 1)

Ongoing assessment and independent work				Module	Total

Evaluation of individual types of academic work in the discipline

Type of activity	Module 1
	Amount	Maximum number of points (total)
Practical (seminar) classes	12	60
Modular test	1	40
Total		100

Evaluation criteria for module control work

Evaluation of module tasks. After completing the content module program within the period specified by the dean's office, the current module control is carried out in the form of a written work and a test, which is evaluated within the range of 1 to 20 points. If for objective reasons the student did not pass the module control within the specified period, then he has the right, with the permission of the dean's office, to pass it within two weeks after the arrears arose.

Evaluation criteria for the final semester control

Ongoing assessment and independent work		Total
Module 1	Module 2
100	-	100

During the semester, students study 1 module in the discipline. After completing each module (lectures, practical classes), current control is carried out in the form of written work and testing. Students who did not attend lectures or did not fully complete the tasks for independent work are not allowed to current control for the content module. Assessment of students' academic achievements and practical skills is carried out according to a 100-point system for 1 module.

A student who, as a result of current assessment and final control for modules (average score for two modules), received more than 60 points has the right not to take the test for the discipline. In case⁶ of receiving a positive final grade for the module, the student also has the right to refuse to take the test. In this case, the overall final grade is entered in the credit and examination record. Provided that the student wants to improve the final grade for the module in the discipline, he (she) must take the test.

A student who, as a result of the final assessment for modules, received less than 60 points is required to take a test in the discipline. If the student's answers during the test are evaluated at less than 60 points, he (she) receives an unsatisfactory final grade. In this case, the results of the current control are not taken into account. The assessment of students' academic achievements is carried out according to the following scale:

Grading scale: national and ECTS
